A dress of arteries

You went wearing a dress of arteries
red and blue with a heritage:
(of) Memory.

[did you expect upon return
from your journey,
stronger you are due to future colours,
the oasis of foresight and vision?]

I am who I am. Let it be.
Come what may come.
Let it be.

Listening, I stand proud..

You came wearing a dress of arteries
red and blue with a memory:
(of) Love.

Andrew Gryf Paterson, 2000.